WHAT'S ON AT SOUTH BANK THIS NEW YEAR'S EVE

Brisbane's biggest New Year's Eve party is on again at South Bank and there are plenty of hot activities planned to ensure your New Year's Eve is a cool one.

From fireworks and dancing to movies and music, there is something to entertain everyone as we welcome in 2008.

South Bank Corporation Chief Executive Officer Malcolm Snow says the Streets New Year's Eve Party at South Bank is a great Brisbane tradition.

"The Streets New Year's Eve Party is now in its sixteenth year and this year's event will offer a great variety of family friendly entertainment," Mr Snow said.

"This has been an exciting year for South Bank and we look forward to celebrating the arrival of 2008."

Revellers will be spoiled for choice with a selection of ice hot entertainment on offer at the Streets Cornetto and Streets Calippo All Fruit Gelato Stages on Little Stanley Street, the Streets Magnum Dance Party in the Suncorp Piazza and the Streets Magnum Movies in the Cultural Forecourt at the Parklands.

Partygoers will also be treated to not one, but two fireworks shows on the night.

Getting to the Streets New Year's Eve Party at South Bank is easy with two Citytrain stations, two busway stations, CityCats, ferries and taxis all servicing the area.

For more transport information including timetables call Transinfo on 13 12 30 or visit www.transinfo.qld.gov.au

For the safety of all patrons the perimeter of the Parklands will be fenced and no glass, alcohol or bottles with broken seals will be permitted within the Parklands from Monday 31 December 2007 until Tuesday 1 January 2008.

Similarly, in the interest of safety of all those attending the Streets New Year's Eve Party no skateboards, boogie boards, bikes, rollerblades, scooters or animals will be permitted within the Parklands during this period.

Please note that all bags will be checked at each entrance point.

For more information on the Streets New Year's Eve Party or safety regulations for the event contact the South Bank Visitor Information Centre on 3867 2051 or go to www.visitsouthbank.com.au
