Welcome to the April edition of Urban Space

Awning upgrades on track

Construction works on the first stage of the new awning installations along Little Stanley Street is progressing well and practical completion is due this week (28 April).

The next stage of awning works at Greystones and Junk on Little Stanley Street will commence on Wednesday May 3 with completion (weather permitting) earmarked for July 3, 2017.

Again, South Bank Corporation would like to thank retailers, residents and visitors for their patience and cooperation during these important upgrades.

Suki = simply sensational

Public excitement surrounding the opening of Brisbane's first 'poke' restaurant, Suki, on Grey Street reached fever pitch this month when their doors opened to hordes of eager diners on April 18.

Focusing on more healthy dining and snack options including Hawaii's traditional dish, poke, which comprises small, healthy cuts of cured fish served on a bed of rice, kelp or quinoa and coupled with a wide range of seasonal veggies and other delicious accompaniments, Suki is already becoming a firm crowd pleaser.

Continuing its welcome assault on Brisbane's food scene, Suki's sister venture located next door – Ramen – lives up to its namesake serving steaming hot bowls of mouth-watering pork, chicken or vegetable broths accompanied by silky ramen noodles, together with a host of accompaniments including gyoza, agedashi tofu and pork belly kakuni.

Suki and Ramen are open daily from 11am to 9pm.

Retail Round-Up

Malt Traders move in Another exciting new retailer to open at South Bank in late March is Malt Traders, which opened in the former premises occupied by Movenpick on Little Stanley Street. Malt Traders is a boutique bottle shop specialising in craft beer, bio dynamic wines and single malt whiskies. Malt's concept is also unique in that drinks purchased in this beautifully designed space featuring warm interiors with alfresco dining tables, can be consumed within Malt's licensed premises. Malt Traders also offers a selection of meat and cheese boards that can be paired with a favourite tipple onsite or taken home.

Baba Ganouj's big reveal

Baba Ganouj has opened from its new location in the former La Via site on Little Stanley Street. The owners and staff of the Lebanese café and restaurant are celebrating their flash new premises and larger dining area for customers. Opening on April 11, Baba Ganouj focuses on authentic Lebanese fare such as wraps and skewers together with an innovative and larger menu to take advantage of its expansive and modern new 'digs'.

Baba Ganouj is open daily from 7am.
